ICCA 2018 Programme Themes

Law-Making in International Arbitration: What Legitimacy Challenges Lie Ahead?

Arbitration Challenged, a four-part series on challenges facing the international arbitration system, including:

- reforms to treaty standards and conditions of access in investment arbitration;
- reforms to commercial arbitration in light of legitimacy concerns;
- party autonomy in closing decision-makers: should it be revisited?, and
- challenges posed by arbitration economics, including third party funding, recovery of costs, and maintaining procedural fairness in the face of significant imbalances in party resources.

Arbitrations Involving Public Bodies and Public Interests, a two-part series including:

- the increasing participation of public entities in international arbitration
- confidentiality, transparency and public participation: too far or not far enough?

Building Better Arbitration Proceedings: Practical Suggestions, a two-part series including:

- revisiting conventional wisdom in the organization of proceedings

- efficiency and the lessons to be learned from commercial courts and other dispute resolution frameworks

The Moving Face of Technology, a two-part series including:

- technology as disruption (including issues of cyber-security)
- technology as facilitation (including new techniques for accommodating geographic distances and promoting efficiency)

Hot Topics and New Voices, a two-part series including:

- a round-table discussion of latest developments and controversies, circa April 2018
- short but provocative presentations by young practitioners, selected through a call to Young ICCA members

New Frontiers in International Arbitration, a two part series including:

- the potential for arbitration in new subject areas (e.g., climate change, human rights)
- the potential of arbitration involving new actors (e.g., non-traditional actors)
